

Transplanting and Large Tree Moving

We have put this service under our Preservation Section to emphasize the value mature plants add to your landscape. Preserving and enhancing the value of your property can include placing overgrown plants in a more appropriate location. Perhaps you have plants that have matured beyond the space they were originally intended for. These plants have or are about to reach their maximum potential and too often they are disposed of for “new” looking plants. Properly designed, constructed and managed landscapes never require “remodeling”. They mature and increase in their aesthetic and financial value almost endlessly. Our knowledgeable staff of trained horticulturalists equipped with the appropriate equipment and techniques can utilize these plants to their greatest potential elsewhere on your property. Another common situation we see are homes built on farm land or in meadows where there are no existing mature plants. Carefully considered mature trees can provide much greater results than that of more modest nursery stock. When the scale of a home and its surroundings are thoughtfully considered it can be integrated into the landscape so as to appear to have always been there.

Carefully digging, baling and burlaping and moving even the most exotic tree or specimen shrub is done with the utmost attention to detail. We have equipment and techniques that can move these heavy trees and without damaging your existing landscape. Using beneficial soil amendments and watering equipment the plants are carefully managed and monitored while they acclimate to their new location. Evergreens, shade trees and ornamentals of every shape and size can be relocated to block and frame views, provide privacy and create shade. Directing ones attention, creating a focal point or arrange existing trees into a more meaningful composition. Whether close to the house or a distant view transplanting trees is a sure way to create a dramatic and meaningful change to your property. We are also actively buying and selling mature trees and shrubs. Whether your remodeling project is going to force the removal of a familiar tree or you need just that right plant to complete your project please contact us about current availability. We are constantly in contact with parties on both ends and sometimes it is serendipitous and sometimes just a simple matter of sourcing the right tree or shrub for your particular project.
